QUESTIONNAIRE No.1 - Opened Oct 24, 2018
1	1	Online Questionnaire 1	Not Asked	Zumba Gold, Nia, Muscle Conditioning, or various other exercise classes for Seniors; also theatre workshop for Seniors. Current Sr. Center's Multipurpose Room is used for all exercise classes; basement's small library room is used for theatre workshop. Exercise classes could use a room 25-50% larger. [Also, given low cost of technology today, a video camera on the upper rear wall transmitting to a large flat screen tv on the wall over where an instructor typically stands would enable participants whose direct view of the instructor's "moves" are blocked at some points by the bodies or heads of other participants, to then follow on overhead screen.] Theatre workshop which meets in the small library and typically draws approx. 2 dozen+ people could use a larger space and one that had a stage area and curtain. NewCAL should have at least two large multipurpose rooms, several other decent sized rooms, administrative offices, a lounge/library space, warm smaller spaces for informal gathering and chatting, a modern kitchen and eating space, game rooms, fully equipped arts and crafts spaces with ample storage, and a large "auditorium" style room for presentations, performances and the like. Of possible interest, Belmont Sr. Center has an extremely large multipurpose room and a wall recessed in the ceiling which can drop down, breaking the space into 1/3 and 2/3 of the space. [They would have been smarter to put in two of these drop-down walls so that it could be broken into 3 smaller but significant spaces, given that they serve their lunches in the part that cannot be properly walled off.]	31-40	Specialized Storage: some for weights, etc. for muscle conditioning; and some chairs required for some muscle conditioning activities and some other exercise classes (and they will need to be stored for classes that don't want them). Any new or rehabbed facility should have up to date technology throughout to facilitate all sorts of established and potentially new activities. Also, heating and air conditioning should be controlled from within the building, not elsewhere as some neighboring towns have done with their new facilities. Such arrangements may sound appealing to planners but those who actually function within them consistently complain that it does not work well in practice. Special Considerations age/ability/mobility: All the usual building features for seniors, some of whom will have mobility issues, will be required. Also, the current senior center has multiple individual use bathrooms; this is an excellent and underappreciated feature. Most new centers have typical bathrooms because the planners have not actually experienced old age. Given the realities of senior life, the four individual bathrooms on the main floor level (plus the two in the basement) are an excellent feature that should be retained in any new or rehabilitated structure. Indeed since after exercise classes, all are sometimes occupied at once, having at least two more gender neutral ones on the main floor level would be desirable. Other Comments: [For future reference, I note that this survey fails to provide for people engaging in more than one type of activity.] Exercise classes of one kind or another happen every day. Theatre workshop normally meets once a week for several hours but more frequently if a public performance is planned.

						The great preponderance of people will come by car and will need to park. Very ample parking will be required in any new or rehabbed facility. NewCAL should be a Seniors-Only facility between 8am and 4pm on weekdays. After 4, and on weekends, it can be available for other Newton community groups/activities involving other age groups, as is actually the case with the current Sr. Center building to some extent. Seniors who come and participate feel comfortable in the non-judgmental atmosphere of seniors-only programs in a seniors-only facility. Many come for the camaraderie and friendship that develops -- and many feel very strongly about this. (That does not mean they won't welcome the occasional, unique, event that crosses generational lines like the Newton South crossing-generations club visits). If Newton wants to also have a central recreation facility then it should build two facilities as Wellesley has done. Or it could build a very large facility with two separate wings: one for seniors and another for the general community. The difficulty with the latter idea is that it would require an extremely large plot of land which would likely require it ending up on the far periphery of Newton making it hard to reach for most people. And of course, if done right it would be very costly.

7	8	Online Questionnaire 1	Not Asked	Library book return/pickup, spreading access to library services across the city, particularly for pickup of reserves, returns drop-off and casual browsing, could greatly benefit many populations, particularly seniors,	1-10	Yes, this could range from a fully automated 24-hour library unit (see https://www.envisionware.com/24-hour-library/) to a browsing shelf and manual return bin. Both would be serviced by library staff visiting daily for about an hour. Optimal design would allow for 24 hour access, not just inside a facility with limited operating hours. food - vending

30	56	Online Questionnaire 3	71+	Please download the past 2 years of the senior center bulletin. Most of the kinds of activities I want have been included there. It would be much more effective and efficient for data gathering if you could sort those activities, and then ask seniors to indicate if they had attended activity in past 2 years - on occasion or often - or if they would like to attend in next 5. Then leave a number of unformatted boxes for additional ideas - many of which will be inspired by activities that have already occurred. That would give a uniform starting point from which to gather data. Otherwise you will get an infinite number of responses and have no way to gauge the popularity of each. I would like to see a small, comfortable center better laid out and just 2 or 3 times the size of the current one. I am not interested in having Newton spend money for a multigenerational space unless somebody can show that there is not already enough space in newton schools, community centers (like Hyde or others in which Newhall meetings have been held), churches, and public and private centers (like vets, JCC or Y) which could be borrowed or even rented much more quickly and less expensively than putting up a new building and then programming. Seniors are 25% of the Newton population and the only group that does not have its own reasonably sized space.

43	75	Online Questionnaire 3	51-70	This is a kind of ridiculous question. We don't know what hours it would be open for seniors only and what hours it would be open for under-senior (HS, etc.). Certainly we would not want it to duplicate things that, e.g. the YMCA has, such as a full-bodied gym. There is nothing online right now that shows what your recommendations are, or how you physically would envision the center - eg how much more sq footage, etc. Are you modifying the building by adding glass annexes and put the stairs, etc., in the glass annex, allowing more floor space for actual activity space? This question is kind of meaningless.

If you think that rowdy adolescents are not going to take over the place, be disrespectful to some seniors with impediments, and have a negative attitude about having to share with old people, then you haven't been mindful of what's been happening in society. Terrible idea. Horrendous step back for Newton's seniors.
